

Candida albicans (wild strain) (DAGA-553)

This product is for research use only and is not intended for diagnostic use.

PRODUCT INFORMATION

| | |
|----------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Antigen Description | Candida species infection is generally endogenous in origin but genital infection can be transmitted sexually. |
|----------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

| | |
|------------------|--------------|
| Conjugate | Unconjugated |
|------------------|--------------|

| | |
|---------------|--------|
| Format | Liquid |
|---------------|--------|

| | |
|----------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Concentration | Batch dependent - please inquire should you have specific requirements |
|----------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------|

| | |
|-------------|------|
| Size | 1 mg |
|-------------|------|

| | |
|---------------|---------------------|
| Buffer | Alkaline pH glycine |
|---------------|---------------------|

| | |
|---------------------|------|
| Preservative | None |
|---------------------|------|

| | |
|----------------|----------------|
| Storage | -65°C or lower |
|----------------|----------------|

BACKGROUND

| | |
|-----------------|-----------------------------------------|
| Keywords | C albicans;C. albicans;Candida albicans |
|-----------------|-----------------------------------------|